Please note that in accordance with our aims and objectives as an ICTM Study Group, this biennial event is not a general conference but a Study Group meeting dedicated to three selected themes which will form the focus of our presentations and discussions.

PLACE AND TIME

Blagoevgrad, Bulgaria

- Beginning date – 2 May, 2016
- Departure date – 8 May, 2016
THEMES

1. Music and Dance in Southeastern Europe in post-1989

The year 1989 indicates the start of a new period of southeast European history, moving on from the collapse of socialist regimes to the processes of EU integration. This has involved broad cultural transformations and caused re-questioning of the dichotomies and hierarchies between East and West, national and transnational, local and regional, public and private, collective and individual, professional and amateur, official and unofficial. In those processes music and dance have played a significant and constructive role. We invite symposium participants to explore the interrelationships between music/dance and society on local or national/regional levels in the context of the post-socialist transition in Southeastern Europe. Topics to be considered could include: How has the process of (re)positioning and (re-evaluating) geopolitical and cultural affinities, politics and the official nation state within Southeastern Europe influenced its musical and dance practices? In which way has the shift of official state policies influenced music and dance performances? What is the role of the individuals in these processes? In what ways has the global consumption of music and dance from Southeastern Europe affected music and dance practice within the region? Has a change in attitudes towards cultural heritage reshaped local music and dance practices which are considered to form part of this?

2. Representations of Music and Dance in audio-visual ethnographies in Southeastern Europe

Audiovisual representations of music and dance are used as one of the basic reference tools in ethnographic research. However the theoretical, practical and ethical implications connected to their use have rarely been discussed among ethnomusicologists and ethnochoreologists. As the available technology has expanded and real-time sources have become easier to access this has given new methods for communicating ethnographies in part replacing the written form. Access and consumption of these ethnographies is no longer restricted to researchers, as film media is also consumed and forms part of the culture within. Symposium participants are particularly invited to address their own various personal experiences of filming music and dance and to consider issues including: How are research methodologies expanding the potential use of ‘audio-visual’ beyond just a reference document? How does the historical perspective in film ethnographies relate to music and dance in Southeastern Europe? What are the relationships between the audiovisual ‘reality’ of music and dance performances and the ways of capturing them through recording processes? How are choices made at the time of visual recording of music and dance, of what to film, where to stand, whether to film at all? How do the editing, selecting and presenting of the recorded material influence its subsequent interpretation? Can these decisions lead to differences in representation in the fields of politics, marketing, media, and business? In which ways can film ethnographies of music and dance in Southeastern Europe contribute to the understanding of the historical, political and cultural uniqueness of this region?

3. Myth, ritual and interpretations in / of music and dance of Southeastern Europe

Music and dance have an important place in the mythology and ritual of traditional cultures in Southeastern Europe. This topic may include a study of music and dance motifs in local mythological understandings and the role of music and dance in calendrical and life cycle rituals. Interpretation of local music and dance traditions implies a look at the "musicality" of the myth or the "mythology" of music. In addition, the study of music and dance events, as well as their social and public uses today, includes aspects of modern mythology and rituals: images and symbols, social mythology, ideology, etc.

We welcome proposals for individual presentations, panels and round tables that address one or more of these questions and other related issues that arise directly from the themes. They are to be sent by email before September 1, 2015.

PRESENTATION FORMATS

You may present only once during the symposium. Please clearly indicate your preferred format. If members have any questions about the program, or the suitability of a proposal, please contact the Program Chair or a member of the Program Committee and ask for assistance. Colleagues are advised to bring alternative modes of presentation delivery if using PowerPoint, DVD, or other format in case of unexpected technical difficulties on the day of presentation.

Individual Presentations

The Program Committee will organize individual proposals that have been accepted into one and a half hour panel sessions. Each presentation will be allotted 20 minutes inclusive of all illustrations, audio-visual media or movement examples, plus 10 minutes for questions and discussion. There will be no deviation allowed from this time allotment. A 20-minute paper is normally around 5 pages of double spaced type. Please submit a one page abstract (about 300 words) outlining the content, argument and conclusion, its relation to the symposium theme you have chosen to address, plus a brief bibliography and/or statement of sources, if appropriate, on a second page. Please include the type of illustrations to be used in the presentation, such as slides, DVD, video (including format), or other materials.

Media Presentations

Media presentations should be no more than 20 minutes in duration. You will be allotted 10 minutes extra for questions. Your presentation should engage critically with the media (video, CD, DVD, and so on) and key material for viewing should be pre-selected. It is essential that your presentation address one of the three themes. Please submit a one page abstract (about 300 words) outlining content, argument and conclusion, the relevance of the media presentation to the selected theme, plus a brief bibliography and/or other sources.

Panels

We encourage presentations in the form of panel sessions. Panel sessions are a group of papers that are entirely planned, coordinated, and prepared by a group of people, one of whom is the responsible coordinator. Proposals may be submitted for panels consisting of three or four presenters and the structure is at the discretion of the coordinator. The proposal must explain the overall purpose, the role of the individual participants, and indicate the commitment of all participants to attend the symposium. Each panel proposal will be accepted or rejected as a whole. Submit a short summary (one-page) of the panel overview, and an individual paper proposal, as described under Individual Papers above, for each presenter. All of the proposals for a panel should be sent together. Proposals should address one or more aspects of the established themes of this meeting. Total length of a panel will be one hour (with an additional 20 minutes for comments and responses).

Roundtables

We also encourage presentations in the form of roundtables. These are sessions that are entirely planned, coordinated, and prepared by a group of people, one of whom is the responsible coordinator. The aim is to generate discussion between members of the roundtable who present questions, issues, and/or material for about 5 minutes on the pre-selected unifying theme of the roundtable. The following discussion, at the convener’s discretion, may open into more general discussion with the audience. The total length of a roundtable will be one and a half hours inclusive of all discussion.

Proposals may be submitted for a roundtable consisting of up to 10 presenters, and the structure is at the discretion of the convener who will chair the event. The proposal must explain the overall purpose, the role of the individual participants, and signal the commitment of all participants to attend the symposium. Each roundtable proposal will be accepted or rejected as a whole.
